Biography

Alla Gorbushina has extensive experience in advising on all aspects of privacy and cybersecurity issues. She works closely with both in-house and outside counsels and IT service providers to effectively deliver projects in the privacy field, including, conducting legal audits of all business processes for compliance with Russian regulations, advising on data transfer strategies, and representing the clients before Russian Data Protection Authority during planned and ad-hoc inspections.

Alla also focuses on transactions involving intellectual property and information technology, including, licensing, franchising, and others, helping the clients to anticipate and resolve issues that may arise in course of such transactions. She combines her IP transactional skills with a deep knowledge on a wide range of TMT matters, including TMT regulatory issues, e-commerce, marketing and advertising issues, and consumer protection.

Alla regularly advises as well on all aspects of contentious and non-contentious IP matters, particularly in the areas of enforcement of copyright, rights to trademarks and trade secrets, protection of confidential information, and domain name disputes.

Alla has worked with both local and international clients across a variety of industries, in particular, automotive, consumer, media and entertainment, pharmaceutical, telecommunications, e-commerce, machinery and finance, IT, and software.
