Biography

Amelia advises on all kinds of investment funds matters, spanning the life of an investment vehicle and the many challenges its managers and investors can face along the way.

Her practice has evolved as the funds industry explores innovative strategies and transactions. She advises on fund formation and marketing in the private and listed space as well as on co-investments, managed accounts, fund exits and investor exits (including GP-led secondaries and tender offers). Her practice is complemented by a second investment-based focus on real estate joint ventures, as well as corporate acquisitions and disposals of real estate.

Amelia's experience covers a range of asset classes including real estate, private equity (including impact investment), infrastructure, hedge funds and UCITS. She advises both fund managers and fund investors.

Amelia particularly enjoys the extra perspective that advising investors gives her and how this complements her advice to managers. She has a talent of balancing technical experience with practical assistance and market knowledge for complex transactions, focusing closely on what her clients want to achieve.
