Biography

Amy Roma is the Global Energy Practice Leader at Hogan Lovells. In her practice, Amy advises clients on a wide range of legal, business, and policy matters involving the commercial nuclear energy industry, including issues related to the existing nuclear fleet, advanced reactors, fusion facilities, and supporting nuclear infrastructure. Her clients include nuclear industry participants, radioactive materials users, startups, investors, NGOs, and various other stakeholders.

Amy has spearheaded many first-of-its-kind, cutting-edge energy projects in the United States and has been recognized as one of the Top 10 most innovative lawyers in North America by the Financial Times and by the National Law Journal as one of the Top 50 "great minds impacting the crucial intersection of energy production and the environment."

Amy is a prolific writer and public speaker on energy matters. She recently testified before the House Committee of Science, Space, and Technology, Subcommittees on Investigations & Oversight and Energy (Oct. 2021), the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee (Mar. 2021), and the Senate Energy and Public Works Committee (Aug. 2020) on the economic, climate, and national security benefits of nuclear energy for the United States.

A strong believer in community involvement, Amy also engages in extensive pro bono work. Among her pro bono work, Amy lead the legal team for the New
