

Tyler C. Glass

Associate
Philadelphia

Biography

Tyler Glass knows that good lawyering involves having a good attitude. That is why he strives to serve his clients with initiative and a smile on his face.

As a securities and public company advisory associate in Philadelphia, his practice focuses on advising corporations in the life sciences industry on a broad range of corporate and securities matters, including 33' and 34' Act reporting, Section 16 reporting, Nasdaq-related matters, mergers and acquisitions, capital market offerings (e.g., IPOs, ATMs and follow-on offerings), and general corporate governance. Tyler has extensive experience in preparing and reviewing Board and Committee resolutions, corporate governance presentations, Form 8-Ks and press releases. Additionally, he regularly advises public clients, including senior executives and boards of directors, on securities, governance, transactional, and a range of other complex issues.

Growing up with the goal of being an attorney while also naturally drawn to the world of business and finance, Tyler finds himself in the fortunate position of being able to blend those two interests in a way that provides excellent service to his clients. A life-long learner, Tyler is not afraid to ask questions and dig into the details of his clients' needs and objectives.

During his time as a law student, Tyler served as a staff editor on the Temple Law Review. Throughout his law school career, he worked as a summer associate at
