Biography

Inmaculada Lorenzo focuses on enforcement and litigation of IP rights, particularly in the field of patents, trademarks and unfair competition. Passionate about creation and innovation as driving forces of development, she helps her clients protect and defend their intangible assets.

Inmaculada represents and advises national and international companies, particularly in the Life Sciences (pharmaceutical, biotechnology and medical devices) and Technology, Media and Telecommunications industries, in patent and trademark infringement and validity litigation and complex IP disputes, including also unfair competition, copyright and trade secret claims.

Inmaculada acts regularly before the Spanish Commercial Courts, hearing all IP related disputes, as well as the European Union Trademark & Designs Court. She is commonly involved in multi-jurisdictional litigation and works hand-in-hand with Spanish and foreign experts, including European Patent Attorneys and reputed University Professors. She has extensive experience dealing with preliminary injunctions, pre-trial inspections, inquiries proceedings and protective actions, and also advises clients on pre-contentious matters and dispute settlement.

Inmaculada studied Law, Business Administration and Management and Music. She lectures on IP and International Litigation in two Master Degree Programs
