Environmental, social, and governance (ESG) issues have unprecedented importance for business. Driven by regulatory change, consumer and investor demand and a growing awareness among institutions, their boards, employees and other stakeholders, companies increasingly are making these issues central to core strategic decision-making.

Navigating this evolving space represents a significant opportunity, yet can also be challenging, with reporting obligations and standards shifting across regions and corporate reputations on the line. Our legally-driven holistic approach to managing ESG issues draws on the full scope of our global practice and sector capabilities to drive long-term profits and maximize positive impact for clients. We help our clients use the law to build a better and more sustainable business and world.

Led by our ESG Board, we advise across five firm-wide practice areas:

- Environmental: co-leaders Jennifer Adams and Thomas Duenchheim
- Energy Transition: co-leaders Tobias Faber and Alex Harrison
