

Erik Lampmann

Associate

Washington, D.C.

Biography

Erik Lampmann's practice spans the complex and diverse privacy, cybersecurity, and data protection challenges facing businesses today. He first joined the firm as a summer associate in Washington, D.C. and London in 2019.

While in law school, Erik immersed himself in legal and public policy scholarship as the Editor-in-Chief of Penn's Journal of Law & Public Affairs and as a Research Affiliate with the Penn Program on Regulation. He also gained experience in government as a law clerk at the City of Philadelphia Law Department and the Senate Judiciary Committee office of Ranking Member Senator Dianne Feinstein.

Erik is deeply involved in pro bono work at Hogan Lovells. Weeks after joining the firm, he successfully obtained a Civil Protection Order for a domestic violence survivor client in a contested hearing before the District of Columbia Superior Court. Since then, he has continued to represent survivors, while also assisting with immigration and post-conviction matters, as well as civil rights litigation.

Latest thinking and events

- News
 - HHS highlights significance of new healthcare technologies in series of regulatory actions
- News
 - HHS issues guidance on disclosures of patient

Phone

+1 202 804 7835

Fax

+1 202 637 5910

Email

erik.lampmann@hoganlovells.com

Practices

Privacy and Cybersecurity

Industries

Consumer
Life Sciences and Health Care
Technology and Telecoms

Education and admissions

Education

J.D., University of Pennsylvania Law School, cum laude, 2020

Certificate in Management, University of Pennsylvania, Wharton School of Business, 2020 reproductive health information

- News
 - Key takeaways from NIST's cyber executive order workshop
- News
 - DHS announces cybersecurity obligations for pipeline companies
- News
 - California AG Tweet draws attention to Global Privacy Control as opt-out mechanism

B.A., University of Richmond, Phi
Beta Kappa, summa cum laude, 2014

Memberships

Member, LGBT Bar Association of DC

Bar admissions and qualifications

District of Columbia
