

Mark Levy

Senior Counsel

New York

Biography

Mark A. Levy advises clients on a broad range of tax and tax-related matters, including corporate entities engaged in acquisitions and dispositions, financial institutions and underwriters involved in securities underwritings and partnership syndications, real estate developers and lenders; real estate investment trusts (REITs); and tax-exempt charitable entities. Mr. Levy has also extensive experience and expertise representing major corporations on IRS audit negotiations and litigation.

Mr. Levy is a lecturer on federal income taxation. He has spoken before bar associations and has participated in seminars sponsored by the New York Law Journal and industry associations. Mr. Levy also has published articles in legal periodicals and newspapers.

Previous to joining Hogan Lovells, Mr. Levy was a partner at a premier national law firm where he had been the head of the firm's tax department and a member of its Executive Committee.

Mr. Levy was recognized as a top lawyer by Town & Country magazine, as well The Legal 500 United States, where he was cited for the "enormous creativity of his tax structuring work in transactions."
