

Antitrust Risks for Companies in Dual Distribution Networks Following Fortiline

Winter 2017

Antitrust LawABA Young Lawyers Division Antitrust LawCommittee Newsletter

In August 2016, the FTC brought the first administrative complaint of its kind against a company involved in a dual distribution channel. Dual distribution refers to a manufacturer that sells directly to end-use customers and sells to independent distributors who in turn sell the manufacturer's product to end-use customers.

Read More: Antitrust Risks for Companies in Dual Distribution Networks Following Fortiline

> Read the full article online