

Enforcing awards against states – is it becoming more difficult?

June 21, 2017

Energy companies frequently face disputes against states.

If successful in such disputes, claimants have to enforce the award or judgment against the state's assets in case there is no voluntary compliance. States may, however, resist enforcement by claiming sovereign immunity.

Read more

Contacts

Markus Burgstaller

Partner

Laurent Gouiffès

Partner

> Read the full article online