

New York Department of Financial Services Cybersecurity rules revised and delayed

30 December 2016

Cybersecurity, Financial Services Alert

The New York Department of Financial Services (NYDFS) just issued major revisions to the cybersecurity regulations for financial institutions that were due to come into effect on January 1, 2017. To allow covered institutions more time to implement the rules, the effective date will now be March 1, 2017, with a series of staggered implementation dates beyond this. There are several notable substantive changes in the revised rules.

Click here to learn more about the major changes to the proposed rules, timing and implementation details, and how to prepare for the new requirements as well as other related cybersecurity developments.

Contacts

Gregory C.
Lisa

Senior Counsel

Aleksandar
Dukic

Partner

H. Deen
Kaplan

Partner

Beth Peters

Partner

Richard
Schaberg

Partner

Tim P. Tobin

Senior Counsel

Paul Otto

Partner

> Read the full article online