

Devin Urness

Associate

Washington, D.C.

Biography

Devin Urness helps his clients navigate complex civil litigation with a particular focus on privacy, data breach, and healthcare-related lawsuits. Drawing upon his business and federal courts experience, he understands his clients' needs both inside and outside of the courtroom.

In law school, Devin researched and published a note on standing in data breach litigation and served as President of the International Law Society. After law school, Devin clerked for the Honorable Karen LeCraft Henderson of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

On the pro bono side, Devin worked on an asylum application for a Cuban political dissident while part of the Vanderbilt Law School Immigration Practice Clinic and has continued his asylum-related work at Hogan Lovells.

Devin was born and raised in Nashville, and now lives in Washington, D.C.

Representative experience

Represented health care company in putative class action litigation arising out of use of a tracking pixel on its website.

Represented a large biosciences company in a federal antitrust class action.
